What is London Festival of Architecture and Breaking Boundaries?

The London Festival of Architecture is 'the world's biggest annual architecture festival in the world's capital city for architecture'

The theme this year is 'breaking boundaries'.

Paul Vick architects, Most Innovative Architecture Firm London 2019 and 2018 (AI Awards) brings you four one off events in their Breaking Boundaries series for London Festival of Architecture to explore innovation and what it means for you and your City. The events are located in buildings that Paul Vick has had a close design relationship with. The series gives an intimate picture of how the invisible structures of the work within the building and the visible structures of the architecture where the event is held, together continue to break the boundaries of our perceptions and lives. Presentations are by practitioners, Client and architect, informing our current thinking and challenging us about what we want for the future.

BB12. BREAKING BOUNDARIES.
CULTURAL EDGE – HAVE YOU GOT IT?

Rob Shakespeare, Principal Curator Keats House describes his experience of breaking down social boundaries and access to culture, and what this might mean about changing our perceptions of ourselves and each other. Keats House, owned by Corporation of London, is in its 200th anniversary celebrations and the museum has developed a host of programmes including a new entrance access and identity with Paul Vick architects for its 30,000 visitors.

Paul Vick, Founder Paul Vick architects, drafted the British Museum spaceplan for the next 50-100yrs ago prior to setting up Paul Vick architects and will describe some of the background to the British Museum, the issues and projects that have fallen out of this work including the re-use of the Round Reading Room, Lighting and Special Exhibitions and more recently announced redefinition of the Western Galleries.

Limited availability. Booking required by Monday 3rd of June.
