Best Cultural Architecture Practice - UK

Multi-award-winning Paul Vick Architects is renowned throughout the architectural market for its dedication to innovation and creation of culturally significant spaces that will stand the test of time. We profile the firm to gain an insight into its latest awards success in the Architecture Awards for the year 2019.

Since it was established in 2007 Paul Vick Architects has been driven by a passion to harness ideas from all areas of life to help people flourish and use the opportunities offered by demography, environment, technology and art to its clients' benefit.

Creatively bringing together forward-looking technology and knowledge advances to architecture, the practice aims to deliver beautiful buildings with improved building performance to meet clients' short- and long-term needs.

When working on any new project, the practice's dedicated and professional team will work with their clients throughout to create an architecture that addresses their changing business and wider values in cultural and commercial settings as well as a tailored approach to private work. This has resulted in enhanced value and enviable return for a wide range of clients.

From an outline brief, feasibility studies follow, more design, tender and a presence on site. A pragmatic approach and strong industry links give Paul Vick Architects the tools to innovate to the benefit of any project, large or small.

The practice's extensive research background and work on buildings in private, cultural and commercial sectors gives them unprecedented experience. The team never assumes that because it has been done one way before that it will suit your project this time, and as such they will always seek to innovate and adapt their offering to suit the clients' specific requirements.

Seeking to enhance its already impressive success, Paul Vick Architects has a bright future ahead of it, with even more projects and new clients on the horizon to drive the firm further into the history books as a creator of unique and innovative buildings that will be renowned for many years to come.
